Cruise Lines Accept At-Home COVID-19 Tests that Deliver Results in 15 Minutes

Royal Caribbean International and Celebrity Cruises are offering fully vaccinated cruisers booked on future sailings access to at-home COVID-19 antigen test kits. The kits are meant to help people more easily meet the CDC's pre-cruise testing requirements.

The CDC requires vaccinated cruisers to show a negative test result from a PCR or antigen test taken no more than two days before their cruise departs. Cruise lines may choose to accept at-home antigen tests if conducted during a telehealth visit. The test provided by Royal Caribbean and Celebrity, and accepted by Carnival Cruise Line, deliver results in 15 minutes.

Cruisers booked on one of the Royal Caribbean brands can order the at-home antigen test at a cost of two for $69.99 or pack of three for $99.99. Pricing includes the test kits, expedited shipping, and a live virtual visit with an eMed Certified Guide who will help with the proper administration of the test. Results are verified in 15 minutes and provided via email, as well as within the NAVICA app.

Cruise from Cape Liberty to Canada, Greenland and Iceland

The burgeoning capital city of Reykjavik has seen a spike in international tourist attention over the past few years, and you'd be hard-pressed to ignore this effortlessly cool port of call on an Iceland cruise. The city is truly magical in the summertime, when the sun is out for longer than you'd ever imagine, and residents stay out late drinking and enjoying food, picnicking, and spending time in nature. Add to that, Qaqortoq, Greenland. All of those 'Q's' in a relatively undiscovered destination and it has to be on your 'bucket list' as I know Greenland is on mine. I have been to Iceland five times and always in winter so I can't wait to see what summer brings. We will also be adding a three night extension which we will package separately as a quick, summer getaway. We will also visit Halifax, Nova Scotia and St. John's New Brunswick. Rates per person for an inside cabin start at $1,999., ocean view $2,499. and balconies $3,269. These rates do not include airfare or the post cruise Iceland 3-night package. All rates should be finalized by mid October. Call Nancy to find out more information.
