FEATURED RECIPE

Rüdesheim Coffee

This German take on an Irish coffee incorporates Asbach Uralt brandy—a famous German spirit dating back to 1892. Named after Rüdesheim am Rhein, a storybook village known for its vineyards, it is served in many of the local restaurants there.

Ingredients

COFFEE

3 cubes sugar
3 Tbsp (44 ml) Asbach Uralt brandy, very warm
5 oz (148 ml) coffee

GARNISH

Sweetened whipped cream
Dark chocolate shavings

Place sugar cubes in coffee cup

Pour brandy over cubes and light with match.

Allow to burn for one minute

Pour hot coffee into the cup and garnish.

Tucson: Find Your Inspiration

The Centenarian

In the fall, Tucson Museum of Art will kick off its 100th anniversary year-long celebration with a host of programming that showcases its western, Latin American, and modern and contemporary art exhibitions. Don't miss out on the celebration of this icon that has been a landmark in Tucson's historic El Presidio neighborhood for decades.

The Man, The Myth, The Legend

DeGrazia Gallery in the Sun is the one-time home and ongoing gallery of Ettore "Ted" DeGrazia. Constructed by DeGrazia himself in the traditional adobe style, the gallery is home to six permanent exhibits and several smaller, rotating ones that showcase DeGrazia's fascination with the Sonoran Desert and its indigenous inhabitants.

The Natural Beauty

Madaras Gallery features the work of Diana Madaras, one of Tucson's most celebrated artists. Her vibrant paintings showcase distinct Sonoran Desert landscapes and can be found not only in her gallery, but on the walls of hotels and attractions throughout the city.

Small but Mighty

One of only three museums of miniatures in the country, The Mini Time Machine Museum of Miniatures' collection of more than 500 smaller-than-life antique and contemporary dollhouses and rooms offers visitors a glimpse back in time and into the realm of fantasy

This Sunday, March 19, get outdoors and take in the solace and enjoyment nature provides on National Backyard Day!

Whether you take the short walk to your own backyard for some rest and relaxation or venture a little further to experience somewhere new in your naturehood, find a trip option that's right for you and #BringHomeaStory.

Celebrity Cruises schedules preview sailings for the new Ascent

Celebrity Cruises will offer two preview sailings on the Celebrity Ascent before its official maiden voyage in December.

The two sampler sailings include a four-night Western Caribbean itinerary departing from Port Everglades on Nov. 22 calling in Cozumel, Mexico, over the Thanksgiving holiday. The second sailing will span three nights and cruise to Nassau, Bahamas, on Nov. 26.

The ship's maiden voyage is scheduled for Dec. 3, sailing through the Eastern Caribbean with stops in St. Maarten, St. Thomas and Puerto Plata, Dominican Republic. The ship will go on to sail seven-night roundtrip voyages in the western and eastern Caribbean from Fort Lauderdale every Sunday.

Like other ships in the class, the Ascent will include a two-story Edge Villa stateroom with direct access to the Retreat Sun Deck for suite guests only, the Magic Carpet lounge and platform, along with spaces like the Sunset Bar, the Resort Deck with cabanas, plunge pools and two-story martini-shaped hot tubs.

JetBlue Just Changed the Way It Issues Travel Credits

JetBlue is now issuing credits with only one year of usage from the date of the original booking as opposed to one year of the date of modification, which it had been doing since the onset of COVID-19.

That means that if you book a flight 12 months in advance, and then have to change or cancel the tickets with one month until travel, you'll only have four weeks or so to use the tickets, instead of one year from when you made the cancellation or change.

JetBlue's travel credit policy now reads: "For tickets issued or exchanged after Mar 8, 2023, that are voluntarily canceled or exchanged to a lower fare, funds are returned as a JetBlue travel credit that is valid for 12 months from the original ticketing date."

Previously, the policy stated: "For tickets booked before Mar 8, 2023 that are voluntarily canceled or exchanged to a lower fare, funds are returned as a JetBlue travel credit that is valid for 12 months from the date the credit is issued."

Still, even with the change, JetBlue is fairly flexible with its travel credit policy. The airline typically sends credits to your JetBlue Travel Bank, an online account that lets you access and manages travel credits that you've received. Those credits can be used to book a new flight for anyone you look—the name on the account doesn't need to match the name of a traveler.

JetBlue just recently opened bookings for its flights between New York and Paris. The service, the carrier's second nonstop transatlantic after its New York to London addition in August 2021, will officially kick off on June 29, 2023. To celebrate, JetBlue is offering limited roundtrip fares starting at $1,899 and €1,299 in Mint and $479 and €399 in core.

The launch is a big deal for JetBlue. According to the airline, France is the world's most visited country and Paris is currently the largest European destination not served by JetBlue from its northeast hubs in Boston and New York. JetBlue said that it could boost service to the French capital even further in the future.

The 10 Commandments of Cruise Ship Buffet Etiquette

What is it about buffets that makes so many of us ditch the politeness and revert to an I-need-it-now mentality? I'm not going to lie: I've been there, stuck in line behind the guy staring vacantly at three choices and taking forever to make a decision, and I can't be bothered waiting, so I swoop around him and take what I want. Would it have killed me to wait an extra minute? Would I have starved? Missed all of trivia? The answer, simply, is no but there are still considerations.

Sadly, I'm sure I'm not alone (though happily for me I'm not the worst offender by far). Something about a buffet line just makes the rules of decent behavior disappear as quickly as a tray of cocktail shrimp.

1. Thou Shalt Not Cut the Line
2. Thou Shalt Not Switch Directions
3. Thou Shalt Watch Thy Children
4. Thou Shalt Not Eat in Line
5. Thou Shalt Not Move the Tongs
6. Thou Shalt Keep Thy Fingers to Thyself
7. Thou Shall Not Take More Than You Can Eat
8. Thou Shalt Use a New Plate Each Time
9. Thou Shalt Wash Thy Hands
10. Thou Shalt Not Make a Doggie Bag
