Fresh Pea Soup

Take advantage of fresh spring produce with Ina's easy pea soup that's ready in just 20 minutes. A quick sauté of leeks and onions forms the aromatic base, which combines with peas and chicken stock to form the body. Blend the soup in batches with some fresh mint, and it's ready to serve. If you don't have fresh peas on hand, frozen peas also work well in this recipe.

Ingredients:

2 tablespoons unsalted butter
2 cups chopped leeks, white and light green parts
(2 leeks)
1 cup chopped yellow onion
4 cups chicken stock, preferably homemade
5 cups freshly shelled peas or 2 (10-ounce)
packages frozen peas
2/3 cup chopped fresh mint leaves, loosely
packed
2 teaspoons kosher salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/2 cup creme fraiche
1/2 cup freshly chopped chives
Garlic croutons, for serving

Directions:

- 1 Heat the butter in a large saucepan, add the leeks and onion, and cook over medium-low heat for 5 to 10 minutes, until the onion is tender. Add the chicken stock, increase the heat to high, and bring to a boil. Add the peas and cook for 3 to 5 minutes, until the peas are tender. (Frozen peas will take only 3 minutes.) Off the heat, add the mint, salt, and pepper.
- 2 *Puree the soup in batches: place 1 cup of soup in a blender, place the lid on top, and puree on low speed. With the blender still running, open the venthole in the lid and slowly add more soup until the blender is three-quarters full. Pour the soup into a large bowl and repeat until all the soup is pureed. Whisk in the creme fraiche and chives and taste for seasoning. Serve hot with garlic croutons.

No Real ID? Flyers without 'acceptable identification' should get to airports early

With the May 7 deadline for Real ID-enabled driver's license for flyers fast approaching, a TSA spokesperson said that flyers without acceptable IDs should plan to arrive at the airport about three hours early for the verification process.

The spokesperson also said that flyers with acceptable IDs should not expect longer security wait times, because "TSA will pull those who do not possess an acceptable ID aside" and that TSA checkpoints would be staffed "appropriately" to handle the initial enforcement period.

Flyers who are pulled aside may be asked to complete an identity verification process, which the TSA said "includes" collecting information such as your name and address to confirm your identity." If travelers decline to cooperate with that verification, or if their identity cannot be confirmed, they may not be able to enter the security checkpoint.

The TSA said that 81% of travelers at TSA checkpoints present what will be acceptable identification, including state-issued Real IDs, passports or a DHS trusted-traveler card like Global Entry or Nexus.

SPRING INTO SPAIN IN FULL BLOOM

Spring is a powerful time, capable of bringing about the most beautiful of changes. Even countries that carry a year-round appeal put on a certain garb of ebullience when those flowers begin to flourish and fill their gorgeous sights with new vitality — and this is exactly what happens in Spain!

Just imagine seeing the Balearic Islands come to life as nature takes reigns and fills the stunning landscapes of Mallorca with new wonders, while bathing Ibiza's still tranquil coasts in the perfect glow of springtime sun. Better yet, think of joining the locals as they rejoice in some of the year's most essential festivals, like the effervescent Feria de Abril in Seville or the floral jubilations that fill the streets of Córdoba in May.

From open-air flamenco displays to capturing the Real Alcázar Gardens in seasonal bloom, a spring trip to Spain offers your clients a chance for a truly exceptional Spanish adventure. In light of this, Travelive's Spain experts have compiled an article that outlines exactly what makes this season in Spain so special, as well as three sample itineraries that will be perfect for discovering its springtime allure.
